LEADERS COMPELLED TO YIELD ANOTHER POINT.

appropriation for Salaries of Judges of the Customs Court Eliminated From the Urgent Deficiency Bill-Disappointment to a Number of Politician WASHINGTON, Aug. 4 .- The leaders in Congress who have charge of the conrence report on the tariff bill have been compelled to yield another im portant point to the insurgent Republicans. The authorization of a customs court of appeals has been practically nullified for the time being, and until Congress takes further action at the regular session nothing can be done in an administrative way toward putting the machinery of this court in motion. The customs court provision was put into the bill by the Senate Finance Committee. It was vigorously attacked in the Senate and the proposed salaries re-

The opposition to the proposal was formidable and vigorous. Senator Clark of Wyoming, chairman of the Judiciary mittee, led a fight against it, and nator Borah of Idaho opposed it on the ground that it was an implied assault the Federal judiciary and that it had been created with the definite object in view of having a tribunal to construe the tariff law in a way that would be ory to the authors of the law, a which the Federal courts had not doing. When the tariff bill came m conference it was found that the ies of the Judges and court officers had been restored to the figures fixed the original report from the Finance mittee. This created some adverse ment, in view of the fact that the court authorization had been put into the bill by the Finance Comttee and the Senate had made a marked ion in the salaries. The result was breat to scuttle the tariff bill unless the ries were reduced. The opportunity for the opponents of he customs court came when the urgent noy appropriation bill was rerted to the Senate. While the tariff fill fixed the salaries, it was left for the conference committee to make necessary arrangement for their payment. After a vigorous onslaught, led by Senator Borah, who offered an amendment reing the proposed salaries generally the deficiency bill was passed, but the appropriations for the customs court

The insurgents were not entirely satisfied with having reduced the salaries, and en the urgent deficiency bill went to ference they renewed their fight, with the result that when the report was made to both houses to-day by the conferees the Senate amendment carry ing appropriations to pay the salaries of Judges and other officers of the pro-In its place was an appropriation of ed new court was entirely eliminated Appraisers in New York to employ special counsel to assist the Government in the cution of appeasl in customs cases in the Federal courts.

On the face of things it appeared that there was no likelihood of putting the customs machinery in motion in the ce of appropriations to pay salaries. In view of certain reports that the court might be organized and proceed to busness, relying on the next session of Congrees to make the needed appropriations, the Senators who opposed the creation of the new tribunal, led by Senator se to make the needed appropriations. Borah, went to the President and to the seders in Congress and secured assurances that no effort would be made to organize the court until after Congress had made a specific appropriation to meet the expenses for salaries, &c. Indeed, under the statutes there is some question whether an attempt to set the machinery of the new court in motion on the part of the executive departments would not lead to serious complication. Congress a few years ago passed a law in the form of an amendment to a general appropriation bill forbidding the heads of departments from creating a deficiency. Under the wording of the statute, which Representative Tawney, chairman of the Appropriations Committee of the House, cited in explaining the situation to-day, the executive departments would incur the risk of penalties for proceeding to incur expenses resulting in a deficit in the absence of a specific appropriation. whether an attempt to set the machinery he absence of a specific appropriation.

The result of it all will be that the customs court matter will go over until the regular session of Congress, and its opponents in the Senate believe they will opponents in the senate believe that part be able at that time to repeal that part of the tariff bill which authorizes the new

The failure of the customs court to The failure of the customs court to materialize will be a great disappointment to a number of politicians who had been looking forward to appointments. According to the report which reached Congress many of the places had been practically filled in advance. A number of "statesmen out of a job" were slated by current rumor for seats in the new customs court, and some of them, in anticipation of appointment, had really taken on a judicial aspect.

It has been generally reported that

It has been generally reported that Will Payne of Auburn, N. Y., son of Representative Payne, chairman of the Ways and Means Committee, and clerk to that committee, had been slated for a place as one of the attorneys for the Government before the new court. One or two members of the Board of General Appraisers in New York have been mentioned by name in the Senate tariff delates as prospective appointees. Senationed by name in the Senate tariff de-bates as prospective appointees. Sena-tor Dolliver made bold to charge that ex-Representative Marion M. DeVries of California, member of the Board of General Appraisers, was to be one of the new Judges. Former Representative Hepburn of Iowa was another prospec-tive Judge of the court, according to the gossip, and the Massachusetts delegation had laid before the President the peculiar qualifications of former Representative ations of former Representative L. Powers of Boston for the Samuel L. Powers of Boston for the customs ermine.

Nothing that has happened in the recent volcanic eruptions of the tariff situation has created the excitement around the halls of Congress as did the information to-day that the movement for the customs court had resulted in a fluke.

The report of the conference committee on the urgent deficiency bill was agreed to by the House to-day by a vote of 136 ayes and 84 noes after a session lasting about four hours. A motion to recommit the report with instructions to eliminate the item providing automobiles for the about four hours. A motion to recommit the report with instructions to eliminate the item providing automobiles for the Vice-President and the Speaker of the House, made by Champ Clark, the Democratic leader, was defeated by a vote of 109 ayes to 122 noes.

The principal feature of the report was the omission of the Senate amendment appropriating $100,000 for a customs court as provided in the tariff bill. After a long discussion as to the amount of compensation for the judges of the court Mr. Tawney, chairman of the Appropriations Committee, explained that the conferees had decided that the best method would be to defer the whole question until next winter. An appropriation of $25,000 was inserted to defray the expenses of litigation in customs cases in the Circuit Court. It would be illegal, Mr. Tawney declared, for the President to appoint the judges of the court during the recess of Congress, and in view of this fact and because of the dispute over the salary question the conferees deemed it advisable to postpone the whole question until next winter when there will be full opportunity to discuss it.

The sum of $10,000 was also appropriated to defray the expenses of a joint Congressional committee to investigate the whole bonding question and to make a report to the next session of Congress.

The appropriation of $100,000 to enable the President to make trade investigations abroad to determine whether or not foreign nations are to enjoy the n nations are to enjoy the tariff was reduced by the to $75,000. When the House met at noon Mr. Payne asked unanimous consent to suspend the rule which requires conference reports to lie on the table one calendar day before their consideration is begun. Mr. Macon of Arkansas objected to suspending the rule. But the leaders were anxious to get the conference report on the bill out of the way and a recess for thirty minutes was taken to enable the Committee on Rules to draw up a special rule to meet the emergency. When the House was reconvened Mr. Dalzell, chairman of the Committee on Rules, presented the special Committee on Rules, presented the special rule and it was adopted almost unani-nously. BEVERIDGE SATISFIED ONE FEATURE OF TARIFF BILL

MEETS HIS APPROVAL.

It Authorizes the President to Make Inquirles Into Conditions Bearing on the Eustoms Laws-Resolution Correcting the Hides Schedule Reported.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 4.-When is a tariff commission not a tariff commission? question was discussed with great heat in the Senate for more than two hours to-day and each side of the dispute reached conclusions satisfactory to itself. The controversy was brought up by Senator Beveridge of Indiana, who early in the session had introduced a bill creating a tariff commission. The subject was dis cussed yesterday by Senator Aldrich of Rhode Island, who took it up as a result of criticisms of that section of the tariff bill which authorizes the President to make certain inquiries into conditions bearing on the customs law. This provision of the bill was adopted as a concession to the advocates of the tariff ommission, among them Senators Beverdge, Cummins and La Follette.

Mr. Beveridge declared that Senator Aldrich's explanation of the provision in question satisfied him that the President had ample authority under it to make inquiries, the results of which would be ing tariff legislation. The President, Senator Beveridge said, was himself satisfied on this point. By inference Senator Beveridge said that the advocates of the tariff commission had won a victory.

Senators Hale and Cummins took issue with the Indiana Senator. Mr. Hale said there was no such thing as a tariff commission in the bill, in fact nothing that at all partook of the nature of a commission such as was proposed in the Beveridge bill introduced more than a year ago. Mr. Hale insisted that the provision to which Mr. Beveridge had addressed himself merely authorized the President to institute certain inquiries to determine whether any foreign countries with which we deal discriminated against products of the United States; f so the President was authorized to impose maximum rates of duties on the imports of the countries so discriminating Senator Cummins agreed with Senator Hale, but Senator Beveridge said that nevertheless he was satisfied. Senator Hale thereupon made a speech in opposition to the tariff commission idea, deny ing, as alleged by Senator Beveridge, that the majority in Congress favored creation of such a body.

The concurrent resolution correcting the hide joker was introduced in the Senate shortly before adjournment this afternoon by Senator Aldrich.

C., July 29 .- No time is to be lost by the Canadian Pacific Railroad in bringing the new seaport of Alberni into direct touch with the world. The Wellington-Alberni section of the pioneer trans-continental line is being rushed to comple tion. Tenders are now invited for grading and bridging on the final section of about twenty-seven miles required to complete the line from Cameron Lake to Alberni. This stretch involves the heaviest work on the entire line. Crossing is made in it of the mountain backbone of the island. It is improbable that certain portions the work in the hills can be done for le than $60,000 a mile, and there is enough of this costly work to tempt the largest railway builders. Grading is now virtually completed on the first section of one hundred miles, from Wellington to French Creek, and the roadbed is ready for the rails.

For the next eight miles, from French Creek to Cameron Lake—which is des-tined to be one of the most delightful resorts in western America, backed as is by towering Mount Arrowsmith—the grading and bridging contract has just been let to Moore & Dixon. Bids for the last section will be receivable from August 7 to September 6, and it is expected that work will be completed before the autumn of 1910.

They were taken back to Brooklyn to find out what their amusement by worrying Superintendent of Police Taylor have been identified. They were taken back to Brooklyn to find out what the control of Police Taylor have been identified. They were taken back to Brooklyn to find out what the control of Police Taylor have been identified. They were taken back to Brooklyn to find the police of Fifteenth and Macon streets, and the other is Lucia Holland, 13 years old, of 1211 Bedford avenue, Brooklyn. When I lucia went to the detective bureau yesterday and said that she and her companion had been kidnapped by three men and brought here in an automobile from New York she gave her name as Lucia. The later her real name was learned and her father, a photographer, was notified. He took both the girls home. Before leaving the girls admitted that they came to Philadelphia with the men of their own will and concocted the kidnapping tale that they might get funds with which to return home.

He admits that Mrs. White was in his room with him when her husband entered and the shooting followed. Anderson says that Mrs. White was infatuated with him and came to his room without solicitation. He says as they were together White and came to his room without solicitation. He says as they were together White entered and saying "I have caught you" began firing.

It is said by detectives that White also tried to kill his wife but failed. The detectives also say that when Mrs. White found the story would be published she tried to throw herself from a window of the hotel, saying she could not endure the disgrace.

of the hotel, saying she could be the disgrace.

White and his wife are held to await the result of Anderson's injuries. White says the shooting was accidental and is supported by his wife. Mrs. White bitterly denies that the shooting occurred in Anderson's room and says she would die before admitting she was with Anderson.

A MICROSCOPIC REVOLUTION

BUT SAN CARLOS MEXICANS WON COMPLETE VICTORY.

Town Revolted Against Jefe Politice's Ways and the Survey of New Town Site-Fortified in City Hall They De-fled the Rurales-Treaty Negotiated EL Paso, Tex., Aug. 4.-Mexico has just suppressed another revolutionary movement, but this time the revolutionists were the victors, and they won bloodless victory, although armed and ready to fight. The disturbance took place at San Carlos, State of Chihuahua, and 400 men were in rebellion. with the chief official of the district and all his subordinates in their power under arrest Matters are reported quiet again, but the dissatisfied element won its point secured a new jefe politico for the district and stopped the Government surveyors who were laying out a town sita The demonstration was made by about 400 countrymen mounted and armed, and for several days terror reigned in the vicinity. The disturbers were in absolute control of the situation and held as prisoners all who opposed them.

The Americans in the section were not molested, but the Mexicans had to take sides or leave the country. Fifty rurales marched overland from Chihuahua when courier took the news to Gov. Creel. clash was expected, but there was no

A clash was expected, but there was no bloodshed. Gov. Creel sent a personal representative with the rurales and he made an agreement with the revolutionists by which their demands were granted and order was restored.

The trouble had been brewing for several months owing to the objection raised by many Mexicans in the district to the administration and the high taxes assessed by Agustin Vale, the jefe politico, and it came to a head when a Government engineer and a party of surveyors arrived to lay out the town site of San Carlos. The natives claimed the land and objected to the survey. When it was continued they organized and took the surveyors and other officials prisoners and set up a little republic of their land and objected to the survey. When it was continued they organized and took the surveyors and other officials prisoners and set up a little republic of their own, electing their leader as jefe of the district.

When the rurales arrived the revolutionists were in control and were armed and fortified in the town hall. The matter was discussed by the Governor's representative under a flag of truce and he agreed to appoint a man of their liking to the position of jefe and to stop all work of surveying the town site until an order should come from President Diaz. Señor José Estrada was named as jefe; the engineers left and the trouble subsided.

San Carlos is about thirty miles off the line of the Orient Railroad and is the head-quarters of several American mining engineers working in the district. The trouble was intensified by an action of the jefe politoo a few days before the arrival of the surveyors, when there was trouble of a serious nature at Ojinaja, just across the international line from Texas, when a mob rescued a man from the police and set him at liberty.

The man came to Ojinaja from Texas with a bride, when three Mexican "bad men" took her away from him and, carry-with a bride, when three Mexican bad men" took her away from him and, carrying her off into the country, assaulted her. One of the men was fined $50, but meeting the husband that evening, he taunted him about the affair, and declared that his companions and himself intended that his companions and himself intended to repeat the offence whenever they got ready. The husband drew a revolver and shot the bully dead. The police arrested the husband, but a mob formed and took him away from the police and escorted him safely back to Texas with his bride.
